Welcome to the New Financial Year

5 things you need to know in 2010/2011

Stay cautious on the economy

Australia survived the global economic crises relatively unscathed but be wary, it might not be over yet as our economy is still susceptible to international conditions. We're predicted to grow at a comparably healthy 3.25% but that assumes that conditions remain reasonably consistent.

In Australia, the economy is uneven. We're starting to see a slow-down in some sectors as the impact of the interest rate hikes (there was a substantial fall in new and used dwelling investment last quarter) and the end of the economic stimulus packages are felt (business investment was down 6% last quarter). Production within our economy is also slowing with a 0.9% fall in the March quarter. The strength of our economy continues to be driven by the mining sector and continued resource demand from China. Plus, with an election looming, everything slows down as the economy shifts into a 'wait and see' mode (except advertisers and media buyers perhaps!).

So, remain cautious and ensure that you plan for the next 12 months and keep a strong eye on performance (see plan or perish below!).

Plan or perish

With a new financial year just under way you have the opportunity to financially map your business. If you get this financial mapping right, you reduce your risk and remove some of the surprises that can occur along the way.

Start by putting together an operating budget for the business. This should not be last years' figures adjusted by some percentage. Look at each line item and assess it critically. Start with your revenue and work up a reliable estimate of your income for the coming year.

You should start to think about what marketing or other activities will be required to produce this income. Once you are comfortable with the income estimates have a look at your expenses and again work up your expenditure budget. Be tough on your costs. Can you manage them more effectively? Also, allow for increases that are likely to flow through into the current year or any additional costs you will incur due to growth. Working through this exercise should allow you to produce your operating budget and identify your likely profit for the coming year. Once you have this figure then it might be an idea to do a couple of alternative estimates so that you understand the impact of changes to your assumptions.

Once you have your forecast profit position, reduce that to a cash flow forecast. You need to know both your profit and cash position. Arriving at your cash position is about understanding the timing differences: How long will it take for your customers to pay you? How much stock will you need to hold? And, what are the payment terms required by your suppliers? With your cash flow, don't forget to allow for things like tax payments, loan repayments, dividends and any capital purchases that are planned. These can be 'big ticket' items and if you don't allow for them then you will get caught out.

As part of your cash flow forecast identify your capital expenditure requirements. Don't deal with these on a one-off basis as they arise, plan them in advance.

This is a process that we can assist you with. Call us today and we'll get your financial road map underway.

Honeymoon over for SMSF

Over the last 12 months there has been a myriad of new interpretations and legislative tinkering to ensure that no one can take their superannuation early or use it for a purpose other than retirement. The key things to watch out for are:

- Any scheme or plan that allows you to take your superannuation early.
- Make sure that you know what you can contribute to your super and how much you can contribute. If you accidentally put too much into your fund, you cannot simply take it back out. If you have a salary sacrifice agreement in place, make sure you review it for any salary changes so you don't breach the caps.
- Make sure any actions you take are allowed by your trust deed. If you have not updated your trust deed lately you may not be able to take advantage of some options currently available. If it's not in the deed, you can't do it!

Mine or yours? Taking cash out of and into your business

The Tax Office is very interested in the way business owner's access money from their businesses. Trusts are currently in the spotlight.

A common approach utilised by many businesses with a discretionary trust is to distribute income to a company, pay tax at the corporate tax rate but leave the distribution in the trust for use by the business owners. In effect, the distribution only occurs on paper. Owners then use the distribution as working capital to fund growth, or in some cases, to fund personal assets. The Tax Office intends to tax any of these distributions that remain within the trust (called unpaid present entitlements) under Division 7A.

Watch your funding mix

If you have borrowings, take some time to review them to ensure that you have adequate funding for the coming year and the mix is right. Banks are lending, but with caution. A key criteria is whether the management of the business appears to be in control. Loan applications made on an urgency basis or unexpectedly will get a tougher treatment than a business that identifies their requirements well in advance. Explaining why the funds will be required, how long they will be needed for, and the basis on which they can be paid, will advance your cause.

What changed on 1 July?

Superannuation pension relief extended

At the start of the financial crisis in 2008, the Government announced that they would halve the minimum pension payment amount - that is the minimum amount of pension that you have to take from your superannuation fund. This concession was extended through to the 2009 financial year. The Government recently announced that they will again reduce the minimum pension amount for the 2010/2011 financial year.

In practice what this means is that if you are say 65 years of age on 1 July and receive an account based pension from your superannuation fund, the minimum you have to withdraw is 2.5% of the account balance (instead of 5%). The continued relief means that retirees do not have to sell investments at an inopportune time simply to comply with the regulations.

Superannuation clearing house open for business

If you are a small business with less than 20 employees, the Government run superannuation clearing house is now available. The clearing house is designed to ease the administration burden of paying multiple superannuation funds every quarter to manage your choice of super requirements. Payments are made by BPay to the clearing house. It's a free service. See www.medicareaustralia.gov.au/super/
